- 00:35:19 Deanna Hall: Is that to be able to share with ANYONE with a google account or only others with access to a share drive (like a co-worker)?
- 00:37:19 Kathy Kotowski: Can you show us where the check mark is again?
- 00:37:41 Laura Vidal-Prudholme: I understand that students can use google docs to translate into another language. Can you show that?
- 00:38:21 Deanna Hall: Kathy, I think under setting then convert to uploads. Is this what you are talking about?
- 00:38:31 Bobby Becka: If you're not in an institutional drive, you CAN share with anyone (not just people within your organization).

00:45:00 Renee Marshall: Tim- Can we please share this resource (the EDU fieldwork journal) with other EDU faculty? It would be great to include this in the EDU Canvas Commons that was recently launched to support EDU faculty during COVID-19.

00:46:09 Joy Foster: I agree that practicum journal is AWESOME.

00:46:11 Miachelle Andrade: Agree

00:46:20 Joy Foster: So smart

00:46:20 Rachel Johnson: Because of Tim, I made one for Observation class

00:46:54 Ellen Khokha: What if community college students don't have google accounts? Only a college email? And how do google docs work in CANVAS?

00:48:08 Cecilia: Google is not friendly with Canvas

00:50:52 Rachel Johnson: @Cecelia, I haven't had an issue with canvas and google. I embed it as an external tool and the students can fill out the form.

00:51:15 Cecilia: Good to know

00:58:51 Renee Marshall: Tim- Is your EDU class 100% observation or is it a mix of observation and participation?

01:05:16 Cecilia: does the data from your journal forms go into Data Studio automatically?

01:06:27 Bobby Becka: What template did you use for that?

01:16:17 Debbie Whitmer: Thank you for sharing!
