Leading and shepherding the work of equity nationally is emotionally draining but taking time to be present and to travel this summer has provided me the ability to understand what is really important- responsive and reflective and loving relationships

00:25:11 Kimberly Barker C.A.R.E: @Lisa Wilson.....YES!!!

00:26:02 Lisa Wilson: I have allowed my students to co-create their curriculum this summer. I want their journey to be meaningful and quick utilization in the field. I want what they are learning to be helpful right now.

00:26:08 Lisa Wilson: @kim xoxoxo

00:29:48 Kimberly Barker C.A.R.E: I appreciate you mentioning Micro aggressions. They can be seen through video as powerfully as in person. We have the power to make others feel inter-belonging by the way we respond physically as well as verbally.

00:35:58 Renee Marshall: This topic is a perfect lead in to our cross system activity coming up shortly!

00:37:34 Lisa Wilson: Can we have a link to the guidebook? I would like to post it on the C.A.R.E. teacher resource website

00:38:29 Lisa Wilson: Thank you - I will grab from JSPAC

00:38:35 Bobby Becka: <http://jspac.org/files/u/88/6a/humanizing-virtual-learning-guidebook.pdf>

01:28:16 Renee Marshall: "We need a system that is singular" - powerful

01:30:26 Bill Vasey: Do we want categorical funding, or

01:30:42 Patricia Doelitzsch: We need to believe in ourselves - and push for the trust and recognition we deserve. We are not "just" preschool teachers or teachers

01:31:09 Rosemary Wrenn: @Patricia - YES! Without teachers, there could be no other professions.

01:31:19 Lisa Wilson: Also students who want to be teachers need to have their schooling paid for so they do not enter into their career in debt- ECE teachers are teacher too with or without a credential

01:31:45 Rosemary Wrenn: Paid apprenticeships (student-teaching/practicum) came up a LOT in the conversations
