Curious if the group has pursued utilizing the Perkins funding colleges receive to support this work? Everyone loves Strong Workforce and sometimes Perkins is forgotten about.

10:29:52 From Kim Sakamoto to Everyone:

Thank you for this important point! We need support to make the connection to Perkins.

10:30:44 From Kathleen White to Everyone:

I am compiling a list of ECE/EDU experts to assist with these goals. I already have tapped some of you. Email me if you are interested in a specific area - kwhite@ccsf.edu.

10:33:13 From Kathleen White to Everyone:

Perkins awards are a funding source that in many cases has not been fully tapped, however, Perkins awards tend to be smaller and focused on things instead of people - materials instead of programs. There are also legacy awards that are political. ECE is CTE and EDU is not always, so we need to be aligned at each college. The new P-3 credential aligns us all.

10:33:21 From Bobby Becka to Everyone:

Yes (to LaCandice) and agree (to Lea). Like SWP support varies from region to region, interpretation of what Perkins can/should support is different from college to college.

10:33:50 From Nadiyah (Nuh-dee-yah) to Everyone:

How can support EDU pathway work while also keeping the integrity of the ECE field as important in its own right, not only as a stepping stone to other careers?

10:37:29 From Kathleen White to Everyone:

Hi Nadiyah! Agree... both sectors are critical to Vision 2030 and the P-3 credential and the health of CA. Apprenticeships could be a way to increase ECE wages as well.

Hi Tony - yes, this work is in progress. The FDRG for the TMC is working on reshaping it. Unfortunately, the work is slow as we work through many of the issues with CalGETC implementation.

10:40:55 From Lea Martinez to Everyone:

Like you said, Kathleen, the P3 credential aligns us all. This is key to changing the mindset to low wage myth.

10:41:22 From LaCandice Ochoa, Chancellor's Office to Everyone:

The Chancellor's Office has a Compendium which outlines all of the financial resources colleges receive.

10:48:36 From Shannon Turmon to Everyone:

Strong Workforce and Perkins have been braided in and supported within ECE, we have dealt more with losing support and connection within EDU.

10:50:23 From Kathleen White to Everyone:

SWP and Perkins are good opportunities to fund this work, but guidance around priorities that are important to the CCCCO are critical. Because all decisions are local, and the sector is perceived as "not a priority" or low-wage, or only for ECE, not EDU, we are often not prioritized, yet the work of the sector is central to the mission.

10:52:03 From Veronica Allen to Everyone:

Thank you all for focusing on the Vision 2030 goals and how they apply to the EDU/ECE sectors. Please continue to voice this sector as a priority of the state Chancellor's plan, at the meetings and discussions that are statewide, State Academic Senate, so that the prioritization of these sectors trickles down to the community college Academic Senate levels and executive administrators of the community college system.

The FDRG is made up of appointed CSU and CC faculty - I am the lead and am helping facilitate proposed changes. The CCC Academic Senate sent out a survey a year ago. We are working off of those recommendations and negotiating changes. Once the FDRG has a draft proposal, we will share it with the discipline faculty and field for input and discussion. Hope that helps.
